

Homeland Security Director Wants to Know What B.I.G. has to Say About Perimeter Security

Feb. 2007 Government Security News "Tell It To Chertoff" editorial submission

B.I.G. Enterprises, Inc.™ manufacturers a serious response to our nation's foremost security concerns - to protect our guards with the highest level of Bullet and Blast Resistance on custom, prefabricated steel guard booths in the industry.

As you know, protecting the perimeter, and ensuring the safety of those who guard it, is the first line of defense from a blast threat to a critical facility. B.I.G. offers state-of-the-art Bullet and Blast Resistant guard booths designed to withstand the highest blast levels, enabling security personnel inside to respond and initiate emergency procedures - saving both lives and property.

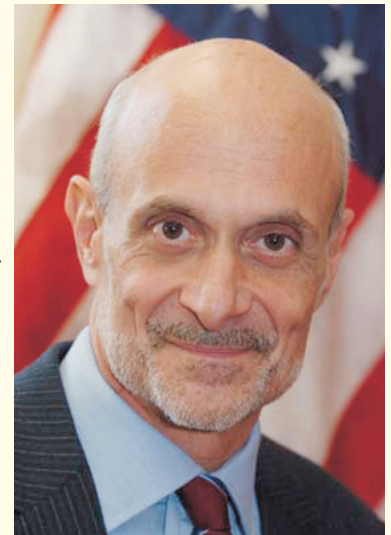

Our Bullet and Blast Resistant booths have been specified in hundreds of post-9/11 security upgrades in key government, nuclear, chemical, agricultural, and water treatment facilities, as well as, financial institutions, petroleum and refinery plants throughout the US, Iraq and Afghanistan.

B.I.G.'s extensive client list includes the Nuclear Regulatory Committee, all branches of the United States Armed Forces and several prominent and, previously, vulnerable facilities that we're legally unable to share, even with you, due to the unwavering commitment we share to the secrecy of our national security concerns.

Blast Resistance presents a special manufacturing challenge that most booth manufacturers are unable to meet. B.I.G. works extensively with leading ballistics engineers, and suppliers of ballistic resistant materials, to develop technology that employs highly specialized materials - such as fiberglass composites and armor-plated steel.

Special features such as continuous stainless steel hinges on Bullet Resistant doors enable them to support armored weight without failure. We've designed and perfected several gun ports allowing for large caliber weapons or small handguns. Both are easily operated and secured.

For over 40 years, our goal has been to manufacture superior quality products with unsurpassed customer service, delivered on time and on budget. Almost every booth design you see throughout the world was introduced into the pre-fab market by B.I.G. Enterprises. We appreciate the opportunity to share our viewpoints and contribute to this nation's safety.
